STEVENS REPLIES TO CRITICISM ADVANCED BY PRIME MINISTER

Former Minister Denies He Received Full Support of Colleagues in His Investigation of Price Spreads—Will Make Detailed Reply From Platform and in House

OTTAWA, Oct. 30 (CP).—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett made no reply tonight to the communication received today from his late Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. H. H. Stevens, in which the latter lined himself up with what he described as "those countless thousands of citizens of Canada who are patiently suffering while others whom you champion in such eloquent terms have been reaping rewards beyond that which any citizen might reasonably expect to win."

His desk piled high with correspondence and voluminous files awaiting his attention, and faced with a long Cabinet council to deal with relief problems, Mr. Bennett read the letter from the former minister just before leaving his office for lunch.

DELAYS HIS ANSWER

The Prime Minister intimated that he would not reply to Mr. Stevens until tomorrow at the earliest, or, at least, that a reply would be made public before that time, if then.

"It is for those inarticulate sufferers that I have been striving with the hope that remedial measures might be found," Mr. Stevens wrote, in answering the communication of the Prime Minister accepting his resignation as Minister of Trade and Commerce and chairman of the Mass Buying Commission.

TEXT OF REPLY

The text of Mr. Stevens' reply follows:

Your letter dated October 26, accepting my resignation, was delivered to me at my home by your special messenger at 4:30 Saturday afternoon, October 27.

In your letter you seek to establish that in my work as a public man of the "price spreads and mass buying committee" I had enjoyed the full support of my colleagues.

POLICE CALLED TO UNIVERSITY

Students Riot at Los Angeles Protesting Suspension of Five Leaders

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30 (AP).—In the wake of a mass meeting of upwards of 3,000 students protesting the suspension of five undergraduates, which ended in riot calls to police, Provost Ernest C. Moore, of the University of California, at Los Angeles, today called upon the campus to "clean house."

Order was restored at the impromptu mass meeting before police arrived, but not until James Smith, campus policeman, was tossed over a hedge after he had pulled down one of the student speakers.

The five students were suspended, Dr. Moore said, because they were fomenting radical activities in the student body against his orders.

SHOULD CLEAN HOUSE

"This demonstration today will prove that students should 'clean house' of the National Student League," he said.

"The length of suspension of the five students will depend upon how long this organization is allowed to exist on the campus."

REPORT DEAL FOR RAIL EQUIPMENT

British Industries Mission Said to Have Obtained $13,000,000 Order From Manchukuo

TOKIO, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Japan Advertiser said today a mission representing the Federation of British Industries, recently visiting Japan and Manchukuo, had made a deal to sell to the South Manchurian Railway equipment totaling 40,000,000 Manchukuo yuan (about $13,000,000).

The equipment, including steel rails, would be used in Manchukuo's railway expansion programme which the S.M.R. is directing.

A contract, which the paper said was to be signed in London after the mission's return, will provide that Seligman Brothers, Ltd., extend twenty-year credits to the railway.

The mission was headed by Lord Barnby. The members left for home on the Ss. Empress of Canada, due in Vancouver November 7.

King Saves Engineer From Death and Then Drives Train

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 30 (AP).—King Boris risked his life today to save an engineer from death in his burning locomotive, and then himself took the throttle to bring the train more than 100 miles to Varna.

The King left his special car, attached to the train, near Strazica, when fire broke out in the coal tender. Noticing the engineer's clothes were aflame, he climbed into the cab and pulled the burning garments from the man's body.

After arranging for medical care for the seriously injured engineer, Boris took the driver's place and drove the locomotive the rest of the way into Varna.

Province Sets Face Against Monopolies On Natural Products

Central Selling Joins Price-Fixing in Roster of Prohibited Efforts, Under Provincial Marketing Legislation—Discuss Personnel of Boards

INTERPRETATIONS of Provincial marketing legislation, important to producer, distributor, and consumer alike, are being made here this week by the Provincial Marketing Board and Government officials. Outstanding in these interpretations is the fact that central selling, or monopolized distribution of a product, will not be countenanced under any Provincial marketing scheme. Of equal importance is the decision that direct price-fixing will not be attempted.

Woman Stabbed by Spiritualistic Reader When Attentions Spurned

SEATTLE, Oct. 30 (AP).—A woman, giving the name of Mrs. W. M. Williams, thirty-four, was rushed to a surgery tonight for treatment of a knife wound in the chest, allegedly inflicted by a spiritualistic reader to whom she had been going for readings and who became angered when she spurned his attentions, police said.

Mollison's Aid Jones And Waller

LONDON, Oct. 30 (AP).—After being delayed by low pressure in the port engine, Cathcart Jones and his co-pilot, Ken Waller, took off from Karachi, India, for Baghdad, Iraq, at 8 p.m., G.M.T., in their flight from Melbourne to London.

The generosity of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mollison made it possible for Jones and Waller to continue their flight after a delay of eight hours at Allahabad, India.

The Mollisons, forced out of the race at Allahabad, gave the returning flyers a cylinder out of the engine of their plane.

MEXICO, D.F., Oct. 30 (AP).—Repeating his charges that the Catholic clergy was attempting to overthrow the Mexican Government by force, President Abelardo Rodriguez today instructed Attorney-General Portes Gil to investigate and "act with all energy" to bring charges against those he found involved.

DEATH CALLS ARCHBISHOP

Most Reverend I. O. Stringer Dies Suddenly on Winnipeg Street

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30 (CP).—A life of service to the people of Canada's far-flung North Country, that stretched into four decades, ended here, today, with the death of His Grace, Most Rev. I. O. Stringer, Archbishop of Rupert's Land. His Grace collapsed on the street while on the way to attend a church meeting. He was sixty-eight years of age.

Choir boys, waiting on the steps of Trinity Hall to welcome the archbishop, saw him coming, carrying parcels. He had been shopping. They noticed him sway slightly and then collapse. They rushed out and carried him into the hall, where doctors were immediately summoned. They pronounced death due to heart disease. He died almost immediately.

HOPES TREATY TO BE REVISED

Trianon Pact to Be Discussed by Hungarian Premier and Mussolini

ROME, Oct. 30 (AP).—Revision of the Treaty of Trianon, which dished out huge slices of Hungary to Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia, will be discussed when Premier Benito Mussolini visits Benito Mussolini here.

Goemboes was encouraged by a recent telegram from Mussolini, following II Duce's speech in Milan. In that address Mussolini spoke of international justice, although without referring to any nation in particular, but subsequently telegraphed Goemboes that he was thinking of Hungary when he uttered the phrase.

Duke of Kent Officiates at Lock Opening

HATTON, Warwickshire, Oct. 30 (AP).—A new boost was given to inland waterways in England here, today, when the Duke of Kent opened the new locks on the Grand Union Canal between London and Birmingham.

The ceremony marked the completion of a $5,000,000 improvement, which began in May, 1931. The job was the largest inland waterway development undertaken in England since the canal was constructed 130 years ago.

ATTEMPTS TO END DEADLOCK

Japanese Ambassador Proposes Another Approach to Naval Talks

LONDON, Oct. 30 (AP).—Tsuneko Matsudaira, Japan's Ambassador to Great Britain, moved today to break the deadlock gripping the three-power naval conversations here.

He visited Sir John Simon, secretary for foreign affairs and member of his Government's naval delegation, at the House of Commons, to propose another approach to an agreement.

Japanese Co-ed Not Easily Absorbed in Land of Ancestors

Miss M. Bollert Describes for Women's Canadian Club Difficulties Encountered by American-Born Japanese Returning to Japan

THE Canadian-born and American-born Japanese returning, after education in this country, to Japan face a very real problem of adjustment to the language, customs, religion, etiquette, education, and all-round culture of the land of their forefathers, according to Miss M. Bollert, dean of women in the University of British Columbia, and Canadian delegate to the Pan-Pacific Women's Conference of last Summer, who spoke to a big audience of Women's Canadian Club members at the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Although the nominal text of her address was "The Co-ed in Japan," Miss Bollert did not strictly confine herself to this subject. Stating that there was no co-education in Japan beyond the elementary schools, she said, on the other hand, there was the American and Canadian-born Japanese girl who had gone from this continent after co-education here. They like their brothers educated on this side and returning to Japan, were very difficult to place, and Miss Bollert and other teachers from Canada and the United States were invited to study Japan with a view to interpreting something of Old Japan to students of that race in the schools here.

The difficulties of the Occidentalized-Japanese co-ed were described as being very real in Japan. In Japan special after-school classes for study of the Japanese language are regularly attended by boys and girls. Students going back from this country have not had the advantages of this cultural training in their own tongue, and find themselves ranked by their own people as illiterates. They cannot read their own language; they have not learned the rituals of politeness; are not familiar with the best culture of Japan, yet adopt a superior attitude toward a people whose culture is ancient by comparison with that of the Western world in which they have been educated.

Another conspicuous handicap was suffered in attempting to enter business. Specialized education was usually required before students from this side were fitted to take positions in Japan.

For all these reasons the young Japanese people going from this country to Japan found themselves definitely at a loss, more or less unabsorbable, and in Japan there was a feeling that Canada and the United States should assimilate these boys and girls here.

WOMEN'S DIFFICULTIES
The difficulties encountered by women co-eds are much greater than for men, owing to the greater restrictions that surround Japanese women, who still come under the old inhibition that "girls should be seen and not heard." The audience were reminded. Despite this, Japan is producing women of outstanding force and character. On the other hand, Japanese women have not been given the suffrage yet, the Upper House having three times rejected a bill aimed at their political emancipation. With the present-day nationalist movement, a definite return to many of the feudal attitudes was noted, prominent among them being the assumption of the tradition that women's best expression would be attained by teaching her submission, obedience, humility, gentleness, chastity, and the ancient household art.

Mrs. Alfred Carmichael, the president, was in the chair, and presented the speaker with a sheet of hot-house. After the presentation, Mrs. J. C. F. Hyndman had moved a vote of thanks. The programme was delightfully supplemented by two tenor solos sung by Frank Irving, accompanied by a piano. Mrs. C. C. Warr, his songs were Godard's "Lullaby" and Handel's "Where'er You Walk."

CHURCH REBELS CLAIM VICTORY

Hitler Decides to Keep Hands Off Ecclesiastical Matters in Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 30 (AP).—A partial victory in their months-long fight against Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller's Nazi church dictatorship was claimed by his opponents tonight after Adolf Hitler decided to let the Evangelical Church fight its own battles.

The Reichsfuehrer, facing an awkward choice between Mueller and his German Christian clique and rebellious church faithful fighting Mueller, received their opposition bishops headed by Hans Meiser, of Bavaria, to hear their outline of the blazing controversy.

After an hour and forty-five minutes with the Chancellor, the three emerged to say: "We are quite satisfied" with Hitler's attitude.

WELCOME DECISION
They were represented as welcoming the leader's decision to keep hands off the church fight, because henceforth they can fight their battles for religious freedom with their own weapons and because they feel that majority opinion ultimately will prevail against what they called Mueller's minority.

Reliable circles, recalling that Mueller used secret police to arrest scores of pastors and impounded church tax moneys in an attempt to overcome his opposition, analyzed the situation this evening as follows:

THREE-POINT UNDERSTANDING
1. Separation may be declared between the church and the state so that the state will no longer collect church taxes.

2. The Government's agreement will not have to be obtained before various measures for appointing church officers are put into effect.

3. Likewise the Government in the future may not pay subventions to the church.

TELLS WONDERS OF ASTRONOMY
Dr. Helen Sawyer Hogg Speaks to Kiwanis Club—Nomination Report Presented

Speaking of distances that ran into hundreds of thousands of light years, toying with the possibilities of life existing on planets other than the earth, and showing interesting slides of photographs taken of the heavenly bodies, Dr. Helen Sawyer Hogg, local astronomer, delivered an interesting address before seventy-five Kiwanis Club members and their wives, last night, in Spencer's lounge room.

The clubmen and their ladies gathered for a banquet and social evening. During the dinner, Donald Macdonald, chairman of the nominating committee, announced the names of those who had been tentatively selected to fill the various offices in the club for the coming year. Further nominations could be made at the association's luncheon, next week, it was explained.

THE NOMINATIONS
Those nominated by the committee were: Rowan MacKenzie, president; Dr. A. M. Menzies, vice-president; S. J. D. Clark, past president; Alvin D. King, treasurer, and W. Ellis Brown, Richard M. Williams, A. Dowell, E. Dickenson, W. H. Harper, Dr. N. C. Cook and Allan D. Ballyntyne, directors.

During the evening, Miss Phyllis Deville and Dudley Wickett pleased with three vocal duet numbers. P. T. C. Wickett was the accompanist.

In explaining the wonders of the study of the stars and other heavenly bodies, Dr. Hogg said that today 90 per cent of this study is carried on through the assistance of photography. As each city or university is known by the number of books in its library, so each observatory is known by the number of its photographic plates of the heavens, she continued. The Little Saanich Mountain Observatory has 23,000 plates, while at Harvard University Observatory, where the first photograph was taken in 1850, there are now half a million.

REAL ADVENTURE
Of late years tremendous strides have been made in this interesting field, Dr. Hogg went on. She showed many reproductions of astronomical photographs and explained that the taking of these plates was "a real adventure, for it was not possible to ascertain the results until the printing." Wonders of the solar system, the sun, and its corona, the moon, comets, meteors, the Milky Way, star clusters and flaming gaseous clouds that exist in the heavens, many thousands of light years away, were all shown and explained in a simple and interesting manner.

LABOR MEMBERS SPEAK LONGEST
Four of Them Hold Places in Debate Marathon While Leaders Say Little

LONDON, Oct. 30. — Aneurin Bevan, Labor M.P. for Ebbw Vale, whose engagement to Miss Jennie Lee, ex-Labor M.P. for North Lanark, has just been announced, has been the most talkative member of the House of Commons in recent months. According to The Parliamentary Gazette, Mr. Bevan, from November, 1923, to the summer adjournment in July, spoke 252 columns of Hansard.

COLUMNS OF TALK
Indeed the Labor party hold the first four places in the record of talking, for Mr. Bevan is followed by David Chiffler, Governor Division of Glamorgan, with 248 columns; George Buchanan (Glasgow, Gorbals), 243 columns, and Sir Stafford Cripps, K.C., 233 columns.

They were followed by two Cabinet ministers, Walter Elliot, 232 columns, and Neville Chamberlain, 202 columns. Among the comparatively silent members were: Stanley Baldwin, 63 columns; John Gilmour, 42, and Ramsay MacDonald, the Prime Minister, 39.

Geoffrey Mander (Lib., E. Weymouth) was easily the most inquisitive member, asking 417 questions.

Race Winners to Receive $100,000
SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 31 (AP).—A. O. Edwards, owner of the winning plane in the London-to-Melbourne Air Derby, announced today that C. W. Scott, the pilot, will receive about $100,000 as his share in the race, which he will probably divide equally with his co-pilot, Campbell Black.

SHOCK WAS SLIGHT
SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 30 (AP).—A slight earthquake was felt here at 6:42 o'clock tonight. It rattled windows and pots and pans, but did no damage.

EMBARGO BY MEXICO
MEXICO, D.F., Oct. 30 (AP).—The Chamber of Deputies today approved an embargo on all arms shipments to Paraguay and Bolivia.

Two Lost When Schooner Sinks
ELLIS BAY, Anticosti Island, Oct. 30 (CP).—Two seamen were lost today when the schooner Roy David foundered in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, according to a report received here tonight.

Details were lacking, but it was stated that Captain Brien and one of his men had gone down with the ship. Other members of the crew reached Clarke City in an open boat.

PAPERS WILL MERGE
PARIS, Oct. 30 (AP).—Two United States newspapers published in Paris—the Paris editions of The New York Herald and The Chicago Tribune—will merge December 1, with The New York Herald company publishing the newspaper under the double name.

Shanghai Paper Carries Story About Victoria

"Hollywood Comes to Victoria, B.C." is the title of an interesting feature article, written by Frank Giolma, of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, which appeared in the October 7 issue of The Shanghai Times.

The article, published in the photographic section of the newspaper, is well set off with pictures of Mr. and Mrs. R. d. la Roque, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas MacLean, Will Rogers, and Mrs. Richard Barthelmess, and Zasu Pitts and her husband, Edward Woodall, motion picture stars, who recently visited this city.

In contrasting the two cities, Hollywood and Victoria, Mr. Giolma says in the article:

"In Hollywood everything is done at top speed, while in Victoria people simply refuse to hurry—they will not believe that life is only a hectic race through the world to see who can first reach the grave." The writer goes on to explain the reason why screen celebrities come to Victoria is that here they find "immunity from publicity."

WALLACE WOOD IS CHOSEN CONSTABLE ON SAANICH FORCE
Wallace Wood, aged thirty-two years, of Wilkinson Road, was last night appointed constable of Saanich Police Force by the municipal police commission in special session. Eighty-three applications for the post were received.

A married man with two children, Mr. Wood has resided in Saanich for twenty years. His duties will commence on November 1. He will reside in the Gordon Head district and will patrol that section of the municipality.

Last night the commission interviewed seven applicants personally, the remainder having been eliminated the previous evening at another special meeting.

"Blatant Liar" Is Heavily Fined
VANCOUVER, Oct. 30 (CP).—Herbert Handley, former Royal Canadian Mounted Police operative, was fined $500 by Judge J. C. McIntosh in county court today, with the option of six months in jail, on a charge of unlawfully selling liquor.

Judge McIntosh labelled Handley a "blatant and unrepentant liar," saying he had abused the confidence placed in him by the police.

Fitzmaurice Delays Flight Indefinitely
DUBLIN, Oct. 30 (AP).—The attempt of Col. James C. Fitzmaurice to establish a new flight record to Melbourne was indefinitely postponed today.

The plane, the Irish Swoop, was made ready for return to the factory in the United States for alterations. Eric Bonar, co-pilot, will return with the plane to the factory.

FIRE POLICY WILL BE SET

Chief Munroe Not in Favor of Allowing Trucks Outside City

Chief Alexander Munroe, head of the city's fire department, in a letter to the City Council, yesterday, recommended against establishing a policy of allowing city fire equipment to go beyond the boundaries of the city and adjoining municipalities.

He pointed out that it was not a lack of co-operation that prompted the recommendation, but the fact that to allow equipment to go on a long run outside the city disrupted Victoria's own fire protection service.

It interfered with the full-in system, which was paramount in the maintenance of adequate fire protection in the city. The full-in system is where equipment from an outside hall fills in the vacancy at headquarters hall when the central equipment has been called out.

The City Council asked the fire chief for his recommendation, in view of the question that arose in connection with the recent fire at the Sidney Lumber Mill. The city was appealed to for equipment, and under the circumstances, and having no set policy, a piece of apparatus was sent.

However, the council will decide at its next meeting upon the policy to be set in case similar requests are made in the future.

Federal Issue of $20,000,000 Disposed of at Low Interest Rate, States Minister

OTTAWA, Oct. 30 (CP).—An issue of $20,000,000 in Government treasury bills was sold today by tender in series of three and six months at an interest cost of 2.35 and 2.47 per cent, respectively, Finance Minister R. N. Rhodes announced. This marks the third occasion since last Spring on which the Government has resorted to the short term offerings by tender, with the interest rate decreasing to a marked degree on each successive offering. The two previous issues, totaling $30,000,000, will have been all repaid on November 1, the present issue taking the place of matured bills now on the market.

Need for Support of Fund Becomes Urgent

Friendly Help Welfare Association's Campaign for $43,500 Is Still Below $20,000 Mark—Will Consider House-to-House Canvass

With the fund still below the $20,000 mark, those in charge of the Friendly Help Welfare Association's campaign to raise $43,500 will probably decide toward the end of this week whether a house-to-house canvass will be made.

The campaign is now entering upon its third week, and although the average donations have been much higher this year than last, the number of those contributing have been much less.

NO SHOES TO WEAR

Less than 8 per cent of the population of Greater Victoria have contributed to the fund, Stewart Clark, campaign manager, stated yesterday.

"It should not be left to a few to carry a burden rightly belonging to the community as a whole. There are little children unable to attend school because they have no shoes to wear. There are others without warm clothing for the winter months, and there are many large families for whom the relief allowance is insufficient to provide even the necessary sustenance. The minimum amount required by the welfare associations to provide clothing and shoes alone is $20,000 a year. One does not like to think of the plight of many of our fellow citizens this winter if the money is not forthcoming. If these facts were realized by all those in a position to help, we would be deluged with donations, and our objective would be attained without difficulty," Mr. Clark said.

DECADES OF PROGRESS

Population Increases Two Millions

Almost every ship reaching Canada's Atlantic ports brought immigrants from Europe. Railroads were building and towns sprang up overnight in the Western provinces. New arrivals soon found themselves at work in construction or upon the land. Canada's Century had dawned.

Long years of courage and tenacity were rewarded by a "bud of prosperity" which now was opening perhaps too hastily. A sharp check occurred in 1907. Speaking at the Bank's Annual Meeting a shareholder said, "I do not suppose that in the history of the world there has been such a crisis as has taken place this year." However, the "crisis" withered abruptly and prosperity returned.

New branches were opened freely during this decade by the Imperial Bank of Canada in both East and West. Two years after the "crisis" of 1907 the General Manager said, "Under our banking system it is impossible for an institution having the country's interests at heart to stand still. It is our duty not only to keep pace, but to foster and encourage development by extending banking facilities."

Silver discoveries at Cobalt led the Bank to open a branch at the silver camp in 1905. But gold was to be the real wealth of Northern Ontario and Timmins Branch in 1911 followed upon the development of Hollinger. Other branches were opened at succeeding camps as gold discoveries were made.

The final year of this decade, which saw the opening of the War, found the Bank with 127 branches and assets of 79 millions. But the high wave of early prosperity had passed. The annual meeting was held on May 27th when the President said, "Conditions in Canada and abroad are not promising." The shadow of the Great War was already felt.

LIBERALS WILL NOMINATE SOON

Nov. 19 Chosen as Date of Federal Nominating Rally in Victoria

With nine candidates chosen already in the sixteen federal ridings of the Province, Victoria Liberals are planning a nominating convention here, on Monday, November 19, to be held at the Shrine Auditorium, with President W. H. Kinsman in the chair. A special committee under the leadership of Garret Martin is canvassing prospective candidates this week. It is stated.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, M.P., and Alan Chambers have accepted invitations to speak at the rally, while Thomas Reid, M.P., may also be present.

PICK CANDIDATES

Liberal nominees selected so far throughout the Province to contest the next Federal election are as follows:

Cariboo, J. G. Turgeon; North Vancouver, A. E. Munn, M.P.; Nanaimo, Alan Chambers; Vancouver Centre, Hon. Ian Mackenzie, M.P.; New Westminster, Thomas Reid, M.P.; and Skeena, Olaf Hanson, M.P.

A. W. Neill, M.P., independent member of the House of Commons for Comox-Alberni, may go unopposed by the Liberal Party, it was said.

Telescope Making to Be Taught

The art of telescope making has become very popular during the past year or so, and as a result many amateurs have constructed with their own hands some first-rate instruments, mostly of the reflecting type, with which they are enabled to do some very interesting observational work in astronomy.

In order to encourage this art locally and give an impetus to the same, the Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada formulated a telescope-making section this year, some of the members of which have turned out some excellent instruments. Each member is given practical training in all branches of the work, and the zeal and enthusiasm with which some are prosecuting their studies speaks well for the future welfare and prosperity of this particular section.

In order to give the general body of members of the centre some idea of what is necessary and of what can be accomplished by amateurs in practical telescope making, a symposium has been arranged on the subject under the leadership of W. R. Hobday, who has charge of the telescope-making section. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Y.W.C.A. on Friday next, at 8 p.m., sharp, and a cordial invitation is extended to all interested to attend.

FUNERAL ON FRIDAY

The funeral of the late Mary Hunt, who passed away on Monday, will be held Friday morning, the cortege leaving Carter's Funeral Home at 8:30 o'clock, and at 9 o'clock Requiem High Mass will be celebrated at St. Andrew's Cathedral by Rev. Father J. A. Gaudette. Interment will take place in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

MANY TOURISTS ARE EXPECTED

Steamship Lines Look for Big Increase in Atlantic Travel

MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—By means of a generous reduction in fares for excursion round-trip passages between Europe and the United States, preparations are now under way for a great movement of tourists from Europe visiting the United States and Canada this coming winter. It was announced today by Arthur Randless, general passenger manager of Cunard-White Star Limited, Anchor-Donaldson Line and Anchor Line.

"Since the reduction in rates will apply equally well to residents of the United States or Canada who wish to make a short trip to Europe, it is expected that the number of American and Canadian tourists and of those resident here who wish to visit their relatives on the other side will also be considerably increased this winter," Mr. Randless said.

BRING IN MONEY

The increased number of people from Europe who come over here is bound to bring more money into this country and should give an added impetus to the return of prosperity in the United States and Canada. Europeans of all nationalities have been widely educated by economic facts and their newspapers and other publications in the importance of these two progressive countries of the new world.

"They want to see and find out what the future holds in the way of industrial development. Naturally, too, they are curious to find how Americans look in their own environment. For many years they have seen Americans abroad and they have wondered what kind of a life they live, just how it differs from their traditional ways of existence and what they have actually accomplished so far in their relatively short history as compared to their ancient one."

HAVE GOOD EFFECT

"It seems to me that such an interchange of representatives of all classes of the different nationalities can have only a good effect in increasing mutual tolerance and understanding and in cementing international friendships. Certainly friendly gestures from a distance of 3,000 miles can never be half so effective a means of bettering economic conditions the world over and in convincing everybody of the futility of hatreds between nations and their ensuing wars."

ARE DENOUNCED AS APOCRYPHAL

Expert Appointed by Court Says Jewish Protocols Scandalous Literature

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 30.—An expert appointed by the court today unhesitatingly denounced the notorious "protocols of the elders of Zion" as apocryphal, as Jewish leaders continued their legal battle to show the world that Jewry has no ambition for world domination.

Mining no words, C. A. Loebl, Berne author and court's expert, declared in his report that the protocols, which previous witnesses for the plaintiffs have declared forged, belong to the category of "scandalous literature of the worst species."

CELEBRATED NAMES

Earlier, the crowded courtroom, fascinated by the amazing ramifications of the fight to clear Jewry of its foul charge that it is plotting to rule the world, heard celebrated names mentioned in testimony for the plaintiffs.

Sarah Bernhardt, famed actress, and the once widely known French and Spanish dancers, Saharet and Otero, were brought into the case as plaintiffs' counsel presented photographic copies of Moscow archives showing, they contended, that the allegedly apocryphal protocols were published under the direction of the Russian writer, Nihilus.

Nihilus had been described in previous testimony as imbued with the spirit of anti-Christ, and Sergius Swiatkow, official under the Kerensky regime, testified that the archives showed Nihilus wanted to include references to Bernhardt, Saharet and Otero in his book dealing with the protocols.

CALCULATED TO INCITE

The summary of Loebl's report, made public by the attorneys for the plaintiffs, who include leading Jews of Switzerland and elsewhere on the continent, described the protocols as calculated to "incite readers to brutality, to avert them from morality and right, to drug their modesty and conscience to the point of inciting them to illegal acts."

Loebl declared that an examination proved that the protocols were based on the famed essay written in 1864 by Maurice Joly, French author, called "A Dialogue in Hades."

Francis A. Auley Is Summoned by Death

There passed away in Vancouver, on Saturday, Francis Albert Auley, aged seventy-three years. Mr. Auley was a resident of Cumberland for many years, but had resided in Vancouver for the past twenty-seven years, coming from Nova Scotia forty-three years ago.

For many years he was employed by the Canadian Collieries Co., Ltd. He was an active member of the I.O.O.F., being a member of that body for fifty-three years.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. James Muir and Mrs. L. Bishop, and one son, F. W. Auley.

The funeral was held from T. Edwards' Memorial Chapel, Vancouver, Monday afternoon, the remains being laid at rest in Ocean View Burial Park.

JOHN NEILSEN IS REMOVED BY DEATH

John Nilsen, aged forty-one years, a native of Norway and a resident of Saanich for the past seven years, passed away on Sunday. He is survived by his mother and other relatives in Norway.

Rev. O. L. Jull will officiate at funeral services to be conducted today at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Colwood Burial Park.

CABINET RESPONSIBILITY

A fight is now in progress for the revision of the French Constitution. There is a tendency in what is proposed towards a closer analogy with parliamentary government in British lands, notably to enlarge the powers of the Prime Minister and his authority over his Ministers. These powers, so far as British lands are concerned, are clearly laid down. It has been recognized in the upbuilding of parliamentary government that if the influence of Ministers is to be rightfully exercised in the legislative body that influence depends upon the degree of unity and mutual cooperation they exhibit between themselves. Political unanimity among Ministers of the Crown is an acknowledged principle. In other words, so long as a Minister continues to form part of the government he shares with his colleagues an equal responsibility for everything that is done or agreed upon by them. Mr. Gladstone's observation in this respect, to the effect "that it is one of our first duties to decline to acquit any member of the Cabinet of responsibility for the announced and declared policy of another," has been endorsed by the highest authorities as a part of the unwritten constitution of Britain.

The struggle in France is between the Senate and the Government. The former is opposed to giving up any curtailment of its long-enslaved prerogative of dissolving the Chamber. M. Doumergue has demanded this right be abandoned. His fight as well as with the Radical Socialist Party led by M. Herriot in the Chamber and the struggle for constitutional reform lies in the fact that the Premier must continue to enjoy the support of the Radical Socialists if he is to remain in office. That support is not being accorded to his plans for constitutional reform inasmuch as the Radical Socialists in the Chamber have gone on record overwhelmingly as opposed to change in the power of dissolution. This follows a similar declaration by the Democratic Left in the Senate which constitutes a majority of that body.

Premier Doumergue is determined to bring about the constitutional reforms he seeks, even if he has to appeal to the people. The French are dissatisfied with their constitution. They want the governmental machine overhauled. The Premier's intention is to make a radio appeal to the nation on November 3, three days before Parliament reassembles. If, following that appeal, the Assembly and the Senate refuse to accept his plans he will ask the Senate for a dissolution of Parliament and appeal to the country on a programme of constitutional reform.

There is in France at present lack of political unanimity among the Ministers of the Cabinet. Five of the Ministers belong to the Radical Socialist Party which has opposed M. Doumergue's plans for constitutional reform. Apparently M. Doumergue cannot call for their resignations without antagonizing a party which is responsible for keeping him in power. This lack of political unanimity, which in British lands would at once lead to reconstruction of the Cabinet, is one of the obstacles which M. Doumergue seeks to render abortive in the future by the reforms he has in view. Moreover, he wants to be within the power of the Prime Minister to dissolve Parliament as it is in British countries. The fight in France for these reforms is likely to be a tense one; to accomplish them in Britain took many decades. Now, however, in Britain the question of Cabinet responsibility has been defined for nearly a century. Of that responsibility Lord Macaulay wrote:

"Each Minister conducts the ordinary business of his own office without reference to his colleagues. But the most important business of every office, and especially such business as is likely to be the subject of discussion in Parliament, is brought under the consideration of the whole Ministry. In Parliament the Ministers are bound to act as one man on all questions relating to the executive government. If one of them dissents from the rest on a question too important to permit of compromise, it is his duty to retire."

IN DROUGHT-STRICKEN AREAS

Only a limited number of the farmers in the drought areas of the Prairies have availed themselves of the offer of cheap transportation for themselves and their effects to new pastures for their cattle and new lands for tillage. The great majority prefer to remain where they are in the hope that reclamation work will be accomplished to remove the drought evil that has cropped up so often in recent years. The settlements involved, or some of them at least, have a high type of settlers and are among the oldest settled areas in the West. The Governments concerned are not insisting on migration. There are plans now being considered of what reclamation work can be done to improve the situation, and in this both Federal and Provincial Governments will assist.

Mr. J. G. Taggart, the Minister of Agriculture in the Saskatchewan Government, says the Administration of which he is a member will assist in the treatment of the land in such a way that it will serve the purpose for which it is best suited. Premier Bracken, of Manitoba, has a proposal for the co-operation of Federal and Provincial Governments for the purpose of land reclamation. In other words, a reclamation project on a very wide scale with water conservation as its first essential. The success of the reclamation work upon whatever lines it may be conceived will depend in large measure on the willingness of the farmers interested to adapt themselves to suggestions that may come from reclamation experts. In this respect The Western Producer says:

"It is possible that farming practices may have to be changed considerably in those districts most affected. In many instances wheat acreage will have to be reduced, and trees, grasses and legumes substituted in some degree in its stead. The difficulty of getting these properly established in certain districts under present conditions must also be faced. A thorough-going coordination of all the information that is available will do much to insure the success of such a scheme as Premier Bracken proposes. It is highly desirable that a clearly defined plan to cope with these situations be undertaken immediately."

SOCIAL LEGISLATION

Latter day politicians seem to be persuaded that people in the mass are growing more and more favorable to such social legislation as benefits the few at the expense of the many. This might have been imagined to be the case more in the United States than in any other country where social legislation on a vast scale has been put into practice under the Roosevelt administration. The conception is wrong if replies to a questionnaire put to the newspapers of the country by The Literary Digest represent in any way public opinion. There were replies received from 5,050 editors of papers with a total circulation of 25,000,000. The answers indicate strong individualistic tendencies rather than those of a Socialistic bent.

Fifty-eight per cent of the replies received did not favor unemployment insurance. There was a larger vote still against compulsory old age pensions. Eighty-nine per cent of the replies showed opposition to any further increase in the national debt and 73.5 per cent opposed fixing of the selling prices of farm or factory products. These replies indicate that the feeling against too much control of private business is running strongly in certain sections of thought in the United States, and there were majorities registered also in The Literary Digest's poll against the fixing of minimum wages and the maximum hours of labor. Comment on this poll is made by The Iron Age which says:

"Progress, and it has been notable progress in the world, has been largely due to our having so many people 'out of step.' Progress toward good or bad might have been much faster had we all marched the goose step, but it has been much safer to make our progress through the natural play of differences of opinion. Under that system we do not march in a straight line but move separately, as individuals, some forward, some backward, some sideways. The general movement, however, has been forward because the course taken by the majority has been right more than 50 per cent of the time. Thus a dictatorship of planned economy has to be right all the time, else it will lead all of the people over the precipice instead of into the green pastures."

Organized labor in the United States is demanding a thirty-hour week. That idea of work will not afford a particularly bright training for those who are desirous of taking up agricultural pursuits. If it were put into practice it would not foster a back to the land movement, for on the land if anything resembling a good livelihood is to be earned it is necessary to work from ten to twelve hours a day.

AN EGOTIST

Inscrutable, she walks across the years
Untouched by time, and knowing not the years
Which fall from loving others better than Ourselves. For almost since her life began
The earth has circled her whims as sun.
Like spiders, she, in slither self-spun,
Has caught her unsuspecting prey
And bound them firmly lest they get away.

An egotist is deaf to any cry
Which does not seek the self to satisfy:
But time will take inevitable toll
And she will find the waters rough and shoal
Where she had thought them deep and cast ashore
On barren wastes of loneliness, life's core
Will shrivel or decay until an old
And unremembered woman dies there unconsol'd.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

It is more than a crime; it is a political fault—Pouche.

We believe it was Lord Melbourne, Prime Minister when Queen Victoria ascended the throne, who called his cabinet together, put his back to the door, and said, "Now, gentlemen, it does not matter a damn what we say, but we must all say the same thing." Statesmen in the days when Victoria was young were more accustomed to using strong language than fine phrases. Victoria changed all that before she became an old woman, but she never reformed the language of her best friend and wisest counsellor. It is even said that she admired the man's use of an occasional "swear word."

If it was Lord Melbourne who first set a precedent for British cabinet solidarity, all Prime Ministers who proved masters of their administrations have abided by the principle thus established. We do not believe the first Prime Minister of a United Canada ever had to resort to disciplinary measures in order to maintain the principle, for loyalty to the person of Sir John A. Macdonald was characteristic not only of his many colleagues, but of all his followers.

After Sir John the most popular Prime Minister Canada ever had was Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Although there was a difference in the personal qualities of the two men, there was no difference in the results achieved by the actions of those divergent qualities upon the minds of men. Sir Wilfrid was a courtly gentleman. He was both suave and dignified, but with all his urbanity of manner he had a high sense of duty, and a high sense of responsibility of his position, was a stern disciplinarian, and would brook no attempt to undermine or diminish his authority. Thus when there arose a question as to what member of the Laurier cabinet was master of the administration the matter was speedily settled by a sensational incident.

Hon. J. Israel Tarte was either ambitiously bold or fatally indiscreet when he undertook upon a certain occasion to announce a government policy without consultation with his leader or his colleagues. In the words of another eminent leader, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, he was incontinent "fired," "sprang from the political picture," was heard of never more. So that the precedent established by Lord Melbourne, an old Tory, was proclaimed more emphatically in Canada by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, a comparatively young Liberal. Hon. H. H. Stevens has been told by his leader that it does not matter a damn what we say as a cabinet so long as we all say the same thing; but if one member says something upon which all are not agreed, the consequences must be upon his head. But it would be indiscreet to say that Mr. Stevens has disappeared from the political picture and will be heard of never more. The late minister is a comparatively young man of great ability and energy, and one indiscretion, if admitted, will not condemn him to immediate obsolescence.

Some indeed say that the consequences of the Stevens affair will be upon the head of the government. That is as it may be; but of one thing we are sure: the consequences will not disturb the mind or affect the course of the head of the government. Mr. Bennett has followed a constitutional course. Mr. Stevens has acted in accordance with what he believed to be the interests of the country. There is, therefore, no question as to who was right and who was wrong. One was right according to precedent. The other was right according to conscience. Judgment upon the issue will be given by the electorate of Canada.

The opposition to the government, of course, is concerned with none of these things. It is not concerned with the interests of the country. Its sole concern is the interest of the party. If the government has been weakened by the Stevens incident, the chances of the opposition getting in will be improved. The fact that the very thing the leader of the Liberal Party has repeatedly demanded (the resignation or the dismissal of Mr. Stevens for certain constitutional irregularities) has been granted, will cut no figure in the case. The thing is to get in. The means of getting in are not of the slightest importance.

Mr. Bennett, of course, is a strong party man, too; but we think that in all fairness it may be said he always has put the interests of the country above the interests of the party. The proof of that statement is the condition of Canada today compared with the condition of most other countries; the manner in which Canada has come through the depression compared with other countries. Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King has declared that if and when he attains power all the Bennett policies will be scrapped.

That the reciprocity treaties with all the British Dominions will be annulled; that another reciprocity treaty with the United States will be sought; that the substance will be dropped and the shadow grasped. That is the issue, and it will have to be determined by the electors. If we were in the position of the Prime Minister, we should be inclined to say: let them go to it, for the consequences will not be upon my head, but upon theirs.

DO NOT BE DECEIVED

A FEW GOOD SEATS REMAIN TO BE HAD AT THE BOX OFFICE FOR TONIGHT'S PERFORMANCE. It is true the advance sale is the largest in the Theatrical History of Victoria. This condition has given rise to the rumor that the house is sold out. Such is not the case. There are still a few locations at each price that remained unsold at the closing of the box office last night. Just from the great demand, these should be disposed of early today. TO AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT, THEY SHOULD BE PURCHASED IMMEDIATELY.

NOMINEES ARE RECOMMENDED

Ward Two Suggests Four Names to Be Placed Before Liberal Convention

With the Liberal nomination convention date only twenty days ahead, possible candidates to carry the banner of Liberalism in Victoria in the Federal election are already being mentioned.

At last night's meeting of the executive of Ward Two Liberal Association, four names were recommended to the special committee that has been appointed to bring nominees before the convention, which will be held in the Shrine Hall on November 19.

The four recommended by the executive last night are Stuart Henderson, who was the Liberal candidate at the last Federal election; C. J. McDowell, vice-president of the Victoria Liberal Association, and campaign manager in the last Provincial election; Dr. John A. Stewart, long an ardent Liberal, and Byron Johnson, M.P.P. for Victoria, who is now resident in New Westminster.

These names will be placed before the nominating committee for its consideration.

TO INTIMIDATE ALIEN FARMERS

International Equilibrium May Be Upset by Bombing in Arizona Valley

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 30 (AP).—Violence again was resorted to in the anti-alien controversy in the Salt River Valley, when three crudely-fashioned bombs were tossed last night on farms operated by aliens.

Little or no damage resulted from the bombings, but they further complicated efforts to effect a peaceful settlement of a situation which already has attracted the attention of the Japanese Government, and threatens to result in strained international relations.

Today in Superior Court, seven temporary restraining orders were issued against thirty defendants in the alien land law cases, enjoining them from possessing or cultivating land in this county.

The temporary injunctions were issued on complaints filed on behalf of the State of Arizona by T. E. Scarborough, deputy Maricopa County attorney.

The acts of violence followed closely the announcement of white farmers, in August, that they were determined to drive alien farmers from the valley. The farmers' organization, however, has denied any connection with the bombings.

TARIFF WALLS ARE ATTACKED

Alan Chambers Criticizes Federal Gov't—Says Cost to West Enormous

Criticizing the tariff walls set up by the Conservative Government in the last four years, Alan Chambers, Liberal candidate in the Nanaimo Federal riding, last night, addressed a meeting of the Victoria West Liberal Social Club in its headquarters at 414 Skinner Street.

The five Western provinces, contended Mr. Chambers, were contributing annually some $80,000,000 for the benefit of industrialists in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, due to the tariffs imposed by the present Federal Government.

All steps that have been taken for the benefit of the people as a whole, not only in Canada but in Great Britain, have been accomplished by the Liberal Party," declared the speaker.

NATIONAL PROBLEM
Mr. Chambers referred to unemployment as a national responsibility, which is of paramount importance to everyone. Mr. Chambers declared that in 1930, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett had asserted employment was a national problem and should be handled by the Federal Government. However, since that time, the speaker charged, Mr. Bennett had altered his attitude and now stated the responsibility rested with the provinces and municipalities.

Mr. Chambers said the Liberals would see that unemployment was administered on a national basis. He urged the setting up of an unemployment commission on a non-political basis.

William Harkness, local magician, entertained the audience with several sleight-of-hand tricks.

LITTLE ROYAL SWED ARRIVES IN STOCKHOLM

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 30 (AP).—A daughter was born tonight, to Princess Sibylla, wife of Prince Gustaf Adolf, eldest son of the Swedish Crown Prince, inaugurating the fourth generation of the Swedish Royal Family.

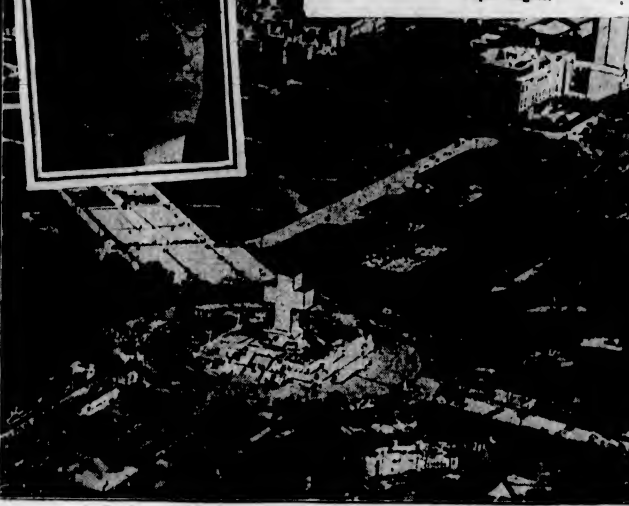

If the child had been a boy it would have been a future heir to the Swedish crown.

Harry B. Mills, theatre critic for one of the Portland, Oregon, journals, was high in his praise for the Marcus "World o' Girls" revue, which will be presented at the Royal Victoria Theatre, this evening, for a lone appearance.

Today in Superior Court, seven temporary restraining orders were issued against thirty defendants in the alien land law cases, enjoining them from possessing or cultivating land in this county.

Police Organize Special Patrol to Minimize Pranks and Vandalism

City police are ready to handle tonight's Halloween situation, when children, and even youths, will join in the general festivities attending the occasion.

Efforts will be made to minimize the number of dangerous pranks by maintaining a strong patrol of the city all night.

A special guard will be placed on all city schools to prevent vandalism, while roving patrols in cars and on motorcycles will split up gangs and keep youths out of mischief as much as possible.

These patrols will, from time to time, telephone into headquarters to receive what complaints have been turned in from the districts they are covering so that there will be a rapid check on any mischief perpetrated. Next to radio cars, the system could not be more flexible than this.

In past years this system has been adopted, with the result that the number of pranks and cases of vandalism have been considerably curtailed.

SUGGESTS NEW PENSION PLAN

James Rutledge Advocates Superannuation System to Benefit Canadians

A scheme of superannuation whereby Canadian citizens at the age of fifty years, and war veterans at fifty years, would receive $150 for married men and $100 for single men and women per month, was outlined last night by James Rutledge, 602 Broughton Street, in an address to members of the Victoria West Liberal Social Club.

Mr. Rutledge advocated the elimination of old age pensions, including long service, army and navy pensions, and the establishment of a circulation fund to be known as the Canadian National Circulation Fund.

TWO PER CENT TAX

To create this fund he urged all money now applied to the credit of the old age pension fund be placed to the credit of the new fund, and that the Dominion and Provincial Governments place an additional credit to the fund of not less than fifty million dollars. A 2 per cent tax on all money in circulation, including bank clearances, stocks and bonds, sales of natural resources, investments, municipal, provincial and Dominion revenue, and wages of all workers, was advocated by Mr. Rutledge.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 31 (AP).—Fire, which already had caused damage estimated at $100,000, was early today threatening a large residential section.

Announcements

There is an Agony of Mind that only sensitive women who suffer from superfluous hair can understand. They distrust advertisements which, through instantaneous cure, having found the relief merely transitory. They rarely speak of their disfigurement, but just bear it in silence. To such women Miss Hanman would issue an invitation to come and see her—they will meet with every kindness and consideration, and there will be no charge whatever for consultation. 503 Sayward Building, Phone G 7643.

Official Is Honored—Oscar C. Bass, K.C., retiring Deputy Attorney-General, was the recipient yesterday of a handsomely engraved silver service case, the gift of his colleagues on the staff of the department. Col. Eric Pepler, who will succeed him, made the presentation. Mr. Bass responding to felicitations, paid a high tribute to the Civil Service in British Columbia.

January Session Likely—The eighteenth Legislature of British Columbia may be called into its second session early in January. Premier Pattullo indicated yesterday. The actual date will depend on factors not yet shaped, including the proposed Ottawa Conference, the time of which is as yet uncertain. The first session opened late in February this year, rising at Easter.

Is Made Manager—Gordon S. Raphael, of the Moore-Whittington Lumber Company, has been appointed secretary-manager of the B.C. Red Cedar Shingle Export Association. It was announced here yesterday by T. H. Wilkinson, inland lumberman. Mr. Raphael will act with the group with Harold McKenzie as inspector. The association was organized recently in connection with quota shipments of shingles to the United States.

Anniversary Near—No special celebration will mark the first anniversary of the return of Liberalism to power in British Columbia. Premier Pattullo indicated yesterday.

Endeavour Lost Race Because of Poor Seamanship

In the opinion of F. A. Bewes, British yachtman, of Port of Cornwall, who saw the international yacht races for the America's Cup at Newport, R.I., the challenger Endeavour would undoubtedly have won the series and the cup had she been intelligently sailed.

Mr. Bewes, who is at present staying at the Strathcona Hotel, awaiting the Ms. Aorangi to sail for the Fiji Islands, explained that any chance that the Endeavour had of winning the America's Cup was thrown away by the mistakes of T. O. M. Sopwith.

Repeatedly, Mr. Bewes said, the speedy British entry overhauled and beaten by the superior knowledge and seamanship of Harold Vanderbilt, captain of the Rainbow, who declared he added that Sopwith lost races repeatedly by allowing the American skipper to get the windward berth.

SEES CRAFT WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED

President of Canadian Handicraft Guild Cites Cases of Jobless Becoming Self-Supporting

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Oct. 30 (CP).—Development of handicrafts in urban centres to provide remunerative employment for jobless who are capable of this work was explained here by Colonel Wilfred Bovey, director of extra-mural relations at McGill University, who is making articles of wrought iron and doing a good business. A previously unemployed country carpenter in Quebec found he could carve excellent statuettes and plaques, and with the help of the Canadian Handicrafts Guild had become quite famous.

Colonel Bovey termed craftwork one of the greatest factors in contentment of a rural population.

"Next to religion," he said, "nothing has so much effect on the country person. The foreign communities in Canada are the ones where the agitators try to find fertile soil for the seeds of unrest, but if they take a foreign community where handicrafts are well established they haven't much of a chance of doing any harm, because handicrafts will keep the community happy and contented."

"Yes," said Mrs. Bovey, who was discussing her next door neighbor, "I got one 'ome on 'er property yesterday. She was 'anging 'er washin' out on the line, and when I sees her old man's shirt, I says, 'Wot, 'as your 'usband joined the Fascist?' Prides 'erself on 'er washin', she does!'"

FISHERMEN TESTIFY
Two practical fishermen, each with thirty-five years' experience behind him, Capt. Rolland Knickle, Lunenburg, and A. Hamilton, Canada, told of Nova Scotia fishermen's deep-sea and in-shore, netting $100 and $150 for a season, and being forced to accept relief because of deplorable low prices.

Here were some of the suggestions left with the commission:
Abolition of the beam trawler (In 1927, the number was cut from fifteen to three).
Appointment of a full-time Federal Minister of Fisheries.
Creation of a Federal fund to be used to advertise fish as a food.

THEATRE ASSOCIATION WILL PRESENT COMEDY
The Victoria Little Theatre Association has chosen Noel Coward's delightful three-act comedy, "Hay Fever," with which to open their fifth season, and rehearsals for this production, which will be presented at the Shrine Auditorium, on Monday, November 5, are now in full progress.

"Hay Fever" is being directed by H. S. Hurn, who promises the many supporters of the Little Theatre an evening of unadulterated enjoyment. This play is a light satire on families whose ultra-Bohemian atmosphere disregards all conventions and manners.

The box office opens tomorrow for members and associate members, and on Friday, Saturday and Monday will be open to the general public.

Y.P.S. News

FIRST UNITED
In the spirit of the season, a large crowd celebrated Halloween at First United Young People's fancy dress social on Monday evening. The hall was decorated in orange and black, with all the spooky trimmings included, and many novel costumes were worn. The prize for best lady being worn by Miss Louise Marsh, as a Mexican, and for best gentleman by Mr. Gordon Robson, as a clown. Numerous games and contests were participated in by all, and were heartily enjoyed. Special items included numbers by Miss King and Mr. R. Hardie, Ken Simpson and Doug Balfour, conveners for the evening, brought their jolly programme to a close with a treat, pumpkin pie and coffee. On Monday evening, Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson will show lantern slides of Northern Ontario.

ST. AIDAN'S
The young people of St. Aidan's held their Halloween party at the home of Miss Mary Sharp. The house was decorated appropriately for the occasion. A huge bonfire and sing-song outside were enjoyed. Games were played in the house. The evening ended with refreshments. The various costumes were particularly good.

JAMES BAY
The James Bay Young People's Society will hold a concert on November 14, in the James Bay United Church, which will take the form of a radio broadcast. There will be a short play and a variety of miscellaneous numbers. All friends of the society are cordially invited to support this concert.

The Misses Florence and Elizabeth Ruggies, of "The Uplands," will leave this afternoon for Vancouver, where they will spend several days visiting friends.

Leaves on Holiday
Miss Georgina Acheson left recently for California en route to the Panama Canal, where she will spend a holiday.

BATTILING OVER SEDITION BILL
Valley, moved for the addition of a new clause providing that police call two or more respectable neighbors to witness police search of any house. It was defeated 325 to 79. Opposition Laborites supported the motion. Sir Donald Bradley Somerville, Solicitor-General, and Sir Thomas Inskip, Attorney-General, resisted the amendment as unwarrantable and unnecessary. The Solicitor-General pointed out that the clause made no provision compelling people to witness police search of premises.

Visitors Have Anniversary
The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barraclough, 205 Beach Drive, was christened, Sunday afternoon, at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay. Rev. Canon A. del. Nunn conducted the service and the baby received the name Neil. Mr. and Mrs. Carl D. Pfender, Miss Mac Barraclough, of Vancouver, and Mr. Alan C. Butchart acted as sponsors. Following the ceremony, Mrs. Barraclough entertained a few intimate friends at tea. Mrs. M. Haas and Mrs. P. E. Fittness presided at the tea table.

Ask Mother—She Knows
Mother took this medicine before and after the babies came. It gave her more strength and energy when she was nervous and rundown... kept her on the job all through the change. No wonder she recommends it.

DEATH CALLS ARCHBISHOP

upon to undertake voyages by lakes and waterways, in the Summer months, and over vast stretches of snow-covered terrain during the long Winter months, he accepted them cheerfully and would seldom permit his subordinates to share them.

ATE HIS BOOTS
He was best known as "the bishop who ate his boots." Accompanied by C. J. Johnson, in 1909, he set out on what proved to be the most perilous of all his journeys. On October 1 of that year, when more than a week on the trail, the two realized they were lost. Their rations were nearing the vanishing point.

A LONELY STATION
Archbishop Stringer was born on April 10, 1866, in Kincardine Township, Bruce County, Ontario. He attended public and high schools and graduated from Wycliffe College in 1892. Immediately after graduation he volunteered for missionary work amongst the Eskimos. His first station was on lonely Herschel Island, in the Arctic Circle, more than a thousand miles removed from civilization.

With his wife as sole helper for more than thirty years he organized schools for the natives, nursed them in sickness and prescribed medicine for them. There was no doctor within 1,500 miles. In 1913 his eyes became affected by the continual glare of the snow and he was transferred to Christ Church, White Horse, in the Yukon. His diocese covered an area of 200,000 square miles.

He left the Northland with reluctance. His problems, he said at the time, were manifold, and with his intimate knowledge of the North, he believed he was best fitted to deal with them. He attended the Lambeth Conference in London, on December 18, 1930, and, on his return, at Toronto, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his consecration as head of the diocese of the Yukon.

THE SUPREME TEST
His highest administrative qualities were put to the supreme test when investigation into trust funds of the church disclosed shortages of more than $1,000,000 (during the chancellorship of John A. Macrae). It was then Bishop Stringer showed the quality of leadership so sorely needed at that time. Meetings were arranged with laymen, advisory committees were named and bishops from all the provinces were called to meet in Winnipeg.

Enthusiastic response was evoked wherever he addressed meetings. On January 24, 1934, total subscriptions to the restoration fund totaled $20,990. The objective he set was $1,076,250.

AN HEROIC LEADER
TORONTO, Oct. 30 (CP)—Most Rev. Deryn T. Owen, Anglican Primate of Canada, was deeply affected today on learning of the sudden death in Winnipeg of his friend, Most Rev. Isaac O. Stringer, Archbishop of Rupert's Land.

Archbishop Owen said: "The sudden death of the most Rev. Isaac O. Stringer comes as a great shock to me and to the whole Church in Canada. He was one of our heroic leaders. For thirty-nine years he worked in the Far North amongst Eskimo, Indians and the scattered groups of white people."

"All along the great Arctic shore of Canada he was known and loved. For years as Bishop of the Yukon he lived in Dawson City, traveling thence to the most remote parts of his diocese. Among the most cherished memories of my own life are my journeys with him three years ago through the Yukon," then saw a first-hand something of the devotion of all the people for the one they called "bishop."

"He leaves a noble record behind him, a record of selfless, heroic pioneer work for Christ, the Church of England, to which he was devoted, and for Canada. A great leader has gone from us."

"My heart goes out in affectionate sympathy to his wife and family, and to his people in the diocese and province of Rupert's Land. We are all the richer for the work and life of Isaac Stringer."

BUMPER HONEY CROP FOR B.C.

Production This Season Is Estimated at 1,512,000 Lbs. Worth $250,000

British Columbia honey production this year is expected to exceed 1,512,000 pounds, together with 15,000 pounds of beeswax, says K. C. MacDonald said yesterday. This is a gain of 50 per cent in volume above returns in 1932, and 25 per cent better than in last year. The value of the crop is placed at between $225,000 and $250,000. Production last year was 1,240,880 pounds, and in the year previous 1,067,200 pounds. Average prices gained a cent per pound during the year.

The bulk of the yield was from Lower Mainland areas, from clover fields along the line of the Fraser River. Much excellent honey was also produced on Vancouver Island.

YIELD IS HIGH
Notable in the returns is a record of higher yield from the same colonies of bees, due possibly to better weather conditions. In the Okanagan and Thompson Valleys the yield was 101 pounds per colony compared with seventy-seven pounds last year. Satisfactory increase was noted also in the Kootenays, the Central Interior and Lower Fraser Valley.

Nearly all of the crop was of exceptionally high quality, Provincial reports indicated.

MANY AT FUNERAL

Funeral services for William Gerald Watson, 912 St. Patrick Street, who passed away in this city Friday, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 p.m. at the funeral home of Dr. J. B. Switzer conducted by a very impressive service. Among those present were many Saskatoon friends of the late Mr. Watson. Many beautiful floral tributes were received from personal friends, business associates and lodge affiliations, both of this city and from the Prairie Provinces. The following acted as pallbearers: E. E. Colbeck, B. T. Chappell, J. T. Merrick, J. Percy Watson, Charles H. French and T. P. McConnell. Interment was made in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

What Today Means

"SCORPIO"
If October 31 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:18 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., from 2:15 to 4:15 p.m., and from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 6:15 to 8:15 a.m., from 12:15 to 2:15 p.m., and from 9:15 to 11:15 p.m.

There is a possibility that a number of things requiring your immediate attention may be thrust suddenly upon you on this October 31. Do not allow yourself to become agitated or nervous, should this occur. If you are calm and systematic you will probably have no trouble handling the various things you are required to, and will be able to do so in a very much shorter time than you anticipate. News regarding a matter in which you are deeply interested may be received through a third party or a letter. Transportation facilities are liable to be subjected to delays on this date, so the wise who have appointments will allow ample time in which to reach their destination. If an invitation is extended to you and you are tempted to decline it, think twice before doing so, for there is a possibility of offense being taken by your refusal, it might be tactful to accept. Married and engaged couples, as well as those seeking to create favorable impressions on susceptible hearts, should avoid drawing too much on their imaginations. If relating a great high of satisfaction and pleasure as he looked over the brown field. Instead of the long rows of broad-leaved, tall green plants, were rows of what looked like brown tents, and Happy Jack knew that in every one of them were many, many ears of beautiful, bright yellow corn.

"Come on," said Bobby Coon, crawling under the fence. Happy Jack drew a long breath of pure delight and scrambled down the fence post and two minutes later he was sitting on top of one of those brown tents stuffing himself with that bright, yellow corn.

It was the first time that Happy Jack had been in the cornfield since the corn was ripe, but Bobby Coon had been there many times. In fact, Bobby Coon had visited it almost every night and he knew just where the corn was biggest and best, which was way over in the middle of the field. So he wasted no time on the brown tents on the edge of the field, but went straight over to the very middle of the field and began tearing open one of the brown tents to get at the plump ears hidden away inside.

Now it is hard work to think of one's stomach when one is still hungry, and it is still harder to think of other things when one is thinking of one's stomach. Happy Jack Squirrel, sitting on top of that brown corn tent, had no room for thought of anything but how good that corn tasted as he ate and ate and ate. He quite forgot that there might be danger so far away from the Green Forest. It wasn't until a stone landed kerplunk against the brown cornstems he was sitting on and a loud shout frightened him so that he nearly fell backward that he was aware of Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy had come down to the cornfield.

There they were, almost over to him, and Farmer Brown's Boy was just getting ready to throw another stone. He dropped the corn he was eating and like a grey flash he dodged around on the other side of the brown tent. Then he scampered over and around the next one, his heart going pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat with fright.

Now when Happy Jack is frightened he can run very fast, and you may be sure he ran his fastest now. He doesn't feel so much at home on the ground as in the tree tops of the Green Forest, and he wished with all his might that he had never heard of Farmer Brown's cornfield. Dodging in and out around the brown corn tents he reached the fence and scrambled down. Then, for the first time, he looked around. Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy were not even looking for him. Instead, they were studying something on the ground. What could it be. Then suddenly Happy Jack knew.

Mix Best Cough Remedy At Home. Easy! Big Saving!

Beats Them All For Quick, Lasting Relief.

If you want the best remedy for any cough, mix it at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind, and it's so simple and easy.

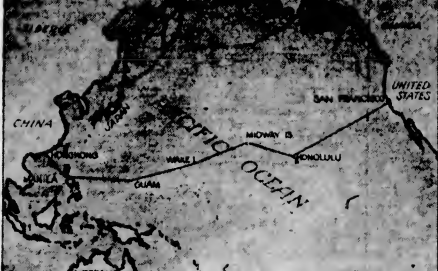

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few minutes, until dissolved. A child could do it. Then get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugstore. This is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, is none less, has healing effect on throat and bronchial membranes. Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 oz. of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and tastes fine. And for quick, lasting relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the passages in a way that makes it impossible to ignore. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membrane, makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

MEAT OR EGGS NECESSARY FOR THOSE WHO WORK

When it was found that overindulgence in meat in those who live a "soft" life might cause trouble with the kidneys and blood vessels, many got the impression that meat was harmful and began to cut down on the amount they were eating or did without meat entirely.

Now, while meat is plentiful in our own country it is not so plentiful in others, and research workers are finding that in those countries where the meat supply has become small, the workmen and the workingwomen are gradually losing their strength, and thus their ability to work.

It is the proteins in meat that build and repair the body cells, used or broken down by work, and meat furnishes the best possible form of protein food.

Milk furnishes a splendid form of protein, because it also is really an animal protein, but the percentage of protein is only about 3 or 4 per cent, whereas good beef has 18 to 20 per cent.

Naturally in a baby or a little child milk furnishes all the protein necessary, which, together with its fats, minerals and vitamins makes milk an ideal food.

However, as the youngster begins to grow and begins to play—all small animals play—milk does not furnish enough protein food to supply the needs made necessary by this growth and play.

A youngster that is "filled up on milk" may increase in size and increase greatly in weight, but there is not likely to be the muscular strength that should be present. Further, if the youngster is soft and heavy from the milk only, then he or she will not have much desire for play. And it is play and the desire to play that builds a youngster physically, mentally and socially.

Now milk must always be used, as it is Nature's best food for children. Every authority on children agrees that their diet should be built around a pint to a quart of milk daily. But as they grow there should be also an increase in the meat or eggs to furnish the extra protein needed.

And adults that do physical work or engage in sports should certainly not cut down on their meat or eggs intake.

Did you think that women are the very salt of the earth?

Did you think that it is very gallant indeed of you to say that, unless you mean that they drive men to drink?

Little Bedtime Stories

In Farmer Brown's Cornfield

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Farmer Brown's cornfield on the edge of the Green Meadows looked very different from what it did when Bobby Coon pulled up the tender young plants, or later in the Summer, when on moonlight nights Bobby Coon feasted on the sweet milky corn. Yes, indeed, it looked very different, but it looked even better to Happy Jack Squirrel than in those other days. Happy Jack

President Grant of American Mail Line Here From Far East

Liner Had Fair List of Passengers and Heavy Cargo — Aorangi and Lochkatrine Due Tomorrow — Lumber Moving

The United States Navy was well represented among the passengers arriving here yesterday morning on the American Mail Line S.S. President Grant, Captain H. B. Clark, U.S.N.R., commander. The liner was inbound from the Philippines, coming by way of China and Japan, and brought a number of the naval men home from Manila, where they completed various terms of duty with the Asiatic fleet. The big ship brought in a fair list of passengers, the first and tourist class passengers going through to Seattle, while some forty third class passengers landed here.

Mail and cargo were left here, the former consisting of 150 bags and the latter of approximately 450 tons of general, including some silver, silk and heavy consignment of lily bulbs. The Grant departed shortly before 10 o'clock and proceeded to Seattle during the noon hour.

Among the travelers arriving on the ship were Lieutenant W. M. Cole, U.S.N., and Mrs. Cole; Lieutenant B. W. Fink, U.S.N., Mrs. Fink and family; Lieutenant J. A. French, U.S.N., and Mrs. French; Lieutenant Harry A. Karo, U.S.N., and Mrs. Karo; Lieutenant Luther S. Stuart, U.S.N., and Mrs. Stuart; Lieutenant Walter E. Weidner, U.S.N., and Mrs. Weidner, and Colonel Matthew A. Cross, U.S.M.

Other passengers included C. A. de Bodico, of Shanghai, en route to Paris; Edward S. Bull, Shanghai, going to London; Elmo D. Campbell, bound to his home in Omaha, following a visit to China; Thomas S. Cobb, returning to his home in

Plan for Better Control of Colds Proved by Tests

Windson, Ont.—A Plan for better control of colds has been developed by the makers of Vicks VapoRub, the modern external treatment for colds. The plan is introduced along with Vicks VapoRub for nose and throat, the new aid in preventing colds. Together with a few simple health rules, these two preparations form Vicks Plan for better control of colds. In clinical tests, the plan has helped to reduce greatly the number and duration of colds. Full details of the plan are in each Vicks package.

POLICE RESCUED FIVE FISHERMEN

Adversus Picked Up Crew of Gloria When Craft Burned Off Coast Monday Last

It was the patrol launch Adversus, Canadian Mounted Police Service, Esquimalt, which so opportunely reached the crew of the Ketchikan fishing boat Gloria after they had abandoned the burning craft Monday evening, near Cape Flattery.

When their boat started to burn, the five fishermen comprising the crew took to the dinghy and were making for shore when the patrol vessel saw the flames and proceeded to the rescue.

The men were taken aboard the Adversus, in charge of H. M. Saxe, and were later transferred to a U.S. coastguard vessel, which landed them at Neah Bay.

The Gloria, a twenty-six ton motor craft, registered at Ketchikan, has been operating out of Seattle to the fishing grounds on the West Coast of Vancouver Island. She was a frequent visitor to Victoria. King Brothers stated yesterday. The boat was a total loss.

Vancouver Shipping

VANCOUVER, Oct. 30 (CP)—The largest consignment of British Columbia apples ever shipped from this province by seaboard will be lifted by the Dutch reefer Mss. Amstelland, in port to T. A. Lee, Whitmore & Carling Company.

She will sail with approximately 90,000 boxes of the fruit, 60,000 of which were loaded in New Westminster over the week-end. In addition, she is loading nearly a full cargo here, taking grain, lumber and general. United States coast ports will fill her complement.

Union Steamships, Ltd., St. Catharines came off drydock this morning after having her propeller changed, and will sail tonight for Prince Rupert and the Skeena.

COMMODORE HAS REACHED TACOMA

Sailing Schooner Makes Port in Twenty-Eight Days From Honolulu—Will Load Lumber

SEATTLE, Oct. 30.—After a voyage of twenty-eight days from Honolulu to Cape Flattery, the sailing schooner Commodore, only wind-jammer operating in a trade route on the Pacific, arrived in Tacoma Sunday night, and will load a lumber cargo for return. The vessel came to the Sound in ballast.

The Commodore, owned by Lewis & Cook, Ltd., of Honolulu, is commanded by Capt. B. N. A. Kramis. The vessel is equipped with wireless and reported her position nearly every night during her trip from the Islands. For her voyage to Hawaii the schooner loaded lumber in Port Charles, sailing August 24 and arriving in Honolulu September 18.

The schooner Vigilant, rival of the Commodore in a spirited sailing ship race from Honolulu to Cape Flattery a few years ago, is idle in Bellingham.

WHERE CADETS LEARN FLYING

Cranwell College Formally Opened Recently by Prince of Wales

Recently, the Prince of Wales opened the rebuilt Royal Air Force Cadet College at Cranwell, Lincolnshire. In part, the new buildings have been occupied for some months; the formal opening ceremony had been postponed until the buildings were complete.

Rather more than half of the officers in the service pass through Cranwell; the remainder hold short-service or medium-service commissions or enter the service direct from the universities. In recent years, too, a considerable number of non-commissioned pilots has been appointed, up to a present total of more than 400. In future the proportion of short-service and medium-service men will probably decline, leaving the force still more dependent on the work of Cranwell.

A RADIO SCHOOL

In addition to the Cadet College, Cranwell also houses a radio school and a hospital. The airfield is one of the largest in the country, with a possible run-way in the longest direction nearly a mile in length; it has been used for the take-off of heavily overloaded airplanes which have attempted to set new records for distance flown non-stop on one fuel load. From Cranwell was launched each of the Royal Air Force attacks on this coveted world record, ending in success when Squadron-Leader Gayford and Flight-Lieutenant Nicholson flew in one "hop" in a special Fairey long-range monoplane from Cranwell to Walvis Bay, Southwest Africa, a distance of 5,309 miles.

The normal establishment of the college provides for 136 cadets. They are under instruction for two years, their training comprising a thorough study of the theory of aviation and the care and maintenance of aircraft and engines, as well as flying tuition. On completion of training, they are posted to squadrons with the rank of pilot-officer equivalent to second-lieutenant in the army.

OIL-ENGINED BOAT SPEEDY

Prince Baudouin, Plying Across English Channel, Proves Economical

From the standpoint of the general public, the Prince Baudouin, which was recently placed in the regular passenger service between Dover and Ostend, is perhaps the most important and interesting motorvessel yet constructed. She is the fastest oil-engined ship afloat, and, moreover, has a higher speed than any other cross-Channel ship, having attained twenty-five and one-half knots on trial. Thousands of persons who have not hitherto been able to travel in a modern oil-engined vessel will now be able to do so and to note the performances of this class of ship.

Until the order for the Prince Baudouin was placed, it was generally considered that short high-speed services, such as those across the English Channel, represented the sole instance in which the motorship could not compete with the steamer. According to The Motor Ship, however, the results attained seem to indicate that motorvessels have considerable advantages in this case, since the fuel consumption is stated to be only about one-half of that of the oil-fired turbine steamers engaged in the cross-Channel traffic. It is understood that the Belgian States Railways, the owners of the Prince Baudouin, will order other ships of the same class to replace existing steamers.

Railways of Sweden are hauling much more freight than a year ago.

Virginia Vane Says:

GIRL SHOWS LACK OF LOYALTY IN FORSAKING BOY FRIEND WHO HAS SACRIFICED HEALTH AND POSITION TO HELP HER.

Dear Virginia Vane: Three months ago the girl I love broke our engagement to go with someone who had a better job than I. She claimed at that time that she loved only me, but that her one purpose in life was to establish a home and have children. It was necessary also that she get married as quickly as possible, as her father was an invalid, and his constant demands on her time (requiring her constant attendance night and day) was surely undermining her health.

During the three years I went with her, I tried to lighten her burden. Constantly over her problem, and many sleepless nights standing guard while she caught a few hours sleep, ran down my health, I was not able to give the best to my job, and when she finally gave me the air, my salary had been cut and I was in danger of losing my job.

Now I have a good job, much better than my other one, and as she is not yet married, I am wondering if I would be foolish to go back to her again. I feel that I will never love again, as I love her.—Bill.

My dear young friend, I am afraid you are in need of a good bawling out. Your common sense must surely show you that this girl for whom you have such a sentimental attachment, is selfish and shallow, and that you are extremely fortunate to have escaped matrimony with her. Perhaps you'd better do more than just think about this girl's faults—that apparently hasn't cleared your vision on the subject—make a list of them. List her good qualities and then list her bad ones. Such an analysis will quickly convince you of her worthlessness as a wife.

True love is a very funny thing in that it thrives on just such difficulties as drove this girl from you. What would happen if you found yourself in financial difficulties after you had married her. Would she leave you? Perhaps not, but she would most certainly chafe at the bit, and your life would be unbearable. It is terribly important that the girl, in an engagement, should be reconciled to whatever financial backing her fiancé happens to enjoy, and though both should be ambitious for the future, a great lot of patience must be exercised.

At present your horizon has been contracted by this girl's refusal, to a point where she seems to be the only one you'll ever care for, but be assured that there are hundreds of girls who, not only have all the qualities you love in this girl but will, in addition, have a sense of loyalty and unselfishness completely lacking in your present friend. Go out and find them!

There is one possibility, however, that we may have overlooked, and that is that this girl really loves you, and though she thought at the time of your break-up that she could find happiness with someone else, she is rapidly finding that her need for you is more important than her other considerations. However, her's is the next move. You have done everything in the past two years to win and hold her love, and nothing you can do now will have any further effect. Either she loves you sufficiently to realize that her happiness is with you, no matter what the state of your pocketbook, or she is much better forgotten and ruled out of your life for ever.

OVERCOMING PARENTS' RACIAL PREJUDICE

Dear Virginia Vane: I am very much in love with a boy of whom my parents strongly disapprove. Though I have told them to be prepared for my marriage to him, they will not give me permission to see him at my home. They have never met him except for a brief moment, when I first met him. They claim that their prejudice is really well founded, but I feel that their only objection can be because he is a Christian. My parents are orthodox Jews. I hate having to meet him secretly, but I love him so that I have had to adopt such a practice. I am twenty-one and feel that I know my own mind.—Depressed.

Parents sometimes fail to be aware of the modern trend, which is influencing their sons and daughters in this matter of racial prejudice. However, the tolerance exhibited by the youth of today is surely the intelligent and progressive attitude, and though this minor revolution is certain to cause unhappiness to parents, it is sure to be successful, and the discerning of the "old guard" are taking their defeat gracefully.

We must try to have your parents see they are defending a lost cause. Even if they succeed in holding their own daughter to the old traditions, they must see the futility of their actions, and that the principles to which they are prepared to sacrifice their daughter's possible happiness are being disregarded all around them. They must be made to see that they are fast losing that precious confidence their daughter has always felt for them, and are very much in danger of losing the love they have come to expect.

Your love for this boy, and his for you, is so much more important to your future happiness than a strict adherence to your inherited racial traditions. Try and make your parents see this. Perhaps it might be well to let them see this column. Admit that you are seeing this boy secretly, that it is the result of their narrowness, and that they will be to blame for your rushing into marriage without due thought. I feel sure they will see the wisdom of your arguments, and will stop trying to influence you with their out-worn prejudices.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"LACE"

A picture says the Chinese proverb, is better than a thousand words. Similarly, an illustration is frequently more elucidating than an extended explanation.

Consider, for example, the word "lace," which quite strangely comes to us from the Latin "laqueus," meaning "noose, snare," and which is probably akin to the Latin "lacere," meaning "to entice."

A typical use of it is by Spencer in:

"For striving more, the more in laces strong."

From this early sense of something which binds, especially by being interwoven—a sense which it has retained to this day, as in:

lacing shoes or corsets—it gradually broadened in application till it took in the most delicate tissues of thread—such as Alençon lace, Chantilly lace, and others.

Mrs. Gayboy had friends to tea, one of them being the wife of a learned professor. "I wish I knew where George was," remarked the hostess, referring to her rather dissipated husband.

The professor's wife drew herself up. "I presume, my dear," she said primly, "you mean you wish you knew where he is."

"Oh, no, I don't," retorted Mrs. Gayboy. "I know where he is. He's upstairs in bed with a bruised eye and a fearful headache. I want to know where he was."

CHAPTER XXI

Giles, hunting now for Scripps in the rain, shrank from the memory of what had followed. Raymond had gone back to the front, and Scripps had soared to incredible heights, a war-bird looking for his prey, and Giles, chafing at the inaction which his orders had imposed upon him, had done his best to look after Amelle.

Then one day Scripps had come down with a crash and Giles had gone with Amelle to see him in the hospital, and had felt her shiver and shake before she entered the room, and had seen her courage as she knelt by the bed and kissed her lover's hand.

Her courage had held all through the dreadful weeks, but there had been sleepless nights, and a bit of nervous breakdown which had made the doctor anxious. "She can't stand much more," he had told Giles, "there's a touch of hysteria. And the war has done things for her."

It was to do more to her, for when news came from the front of Raymond's death, she went to pieces. "The shock has disturbed her balance," the doctor said cautiously. "Mentally?"

"Yes."

Giles went to her at once. And when she saw him a strange thing happened. For she welcomed him not as Scripps' friend, but as the brother she had lost. "They told me you were dead," she said. "I knew they were lying."

The obsession had persisted. Her marriage with Scripps was as if it had never been. When he came from the hospital, she met him merely as a friend of Giles. She tolerated his presence because Giles said she must. But she always protested, "I want no one but you."

The doctors said they had known other cases of the kind. Perhaps a slight resemblance between Giles and Raymond had started it, but more likely the cause had been in her need at the moment for relief from the deadening sense of loss. There was for a time trouble with the name. "You are not Giles, you are Raymond." But gradually she had come to accept this as one of the topsy-turvy things in this strange world in which she was living. There was so much she could not understand, and which hurt her head when she tried.

And so, when the war was over, Giles had brought her with Scripps to the island. There had seemed no other way in which to patch up Scripps' shattered life. There was hope, a great specialist had assured them that the peace and quiet of the island would work a cure. But he promised nothing.

Amelle saw no exception to the household group. The people of the town had been told she was the wife of Stephen and a nervous invalid. There was little gossip. Everyone knew Giles and respected him. They liked the fact that he had chosen to live among them, when he might have gone far afield for adventure. Oh, well. . . Giles wrenched himself back to present realities. . . he had set his feet in a path and he would follow it. He could not now withdraw his strength from these two who needed him—no matter how hard the way, he must pursue it.

He found Scripps in a sheltered corner of the rocks—a dark shape in the gloom. "My dear fellow," Giles said, as he came up, "you've no business to do a thing like this."

"Why not?"

"It's cold and wet—you'll be in knots with rheumatism."

"If I died what difference would it make?" Scripps' voice was hoarse with despair.

Giles dropped a hand on his shoulder. "It would make all the difference in the world to me."

"Do you mean that, Giles?"

"You know I do."

They walked back together, and found the fire in the living-room still glowing. They sat down in front of it and talked of Amelle in low tones. Scripps saw no light ahead. "She cares nothing for me."

"She is not responsible for what she does."

"I know. But I still suffer. . ."

Neither of them wanted to go to bed. The storm, raging outside, seemed to shut them away from all the world so that they were led to confidences which are given only at such times. And it was thus that Giles finally unfolded to his friend the story of the friendship between himself and Joan Dudley.

"She's a rare child, Scripps. A lamb among wolves," was the way he ended it. Scripps had been told of her engagement, of Giles' doubts of Drew, of the wicked old witch of an aunt, of Joan's need of a helping hand.

Scripps, looking up from the fire with somber eyes, said, "You're in love with her?"

"Yes. But I'm asking nothing for myself."

"Why not?"

"But if she did care?"

"It must never come to that."

"Why shouldn't it?"

Giles rose restlessly, and stood leaning on the back of his chair. "I shan't marry."

"That's nonsense. You know you will. . . or if you don't it will be because of Amelle and me. . . because we're a drag on you. . ."

Scripps flung up his head in a wild gesture.

Giles said, sternly, "Stop that. And don't be silly. I'm sorry I told you about Joan. She's engaged to the other fellow and will probably marry him. . . It won't be easy for me to see her do it. I'd be glad to prevent it, because she won't be happy. But it's hands off, I suppose, even if I know her life will be wrecked. . ."

Scripps rose and stood beside him. "I'm a poor sick," he said shakily, "and my troubles go to my head. But I love you."

"I know. . ."

Giles put an arm about the other's shoulders, and they stood there together saying

Koch-Daneff resulted in shipment of 286 tons of ore which carried an average of over four ounces of gold to the ton, or close to $150 per ton in gold. This is official data both from the Ontario Department of Mines as well as from Dikdik of the property. Harry L. Donaldson, engineer for Smelter Gold, made a preliminary examination of the Koch-Daneff. Two samples of mineralized schist from the walls of the vein showed 13 ounces of gold, or $4.50 per ton. Two samples of quartz and sulphides assayed 6.23 ounces and 18.14 ounces, or $217.70 and $634.90, respectively, to the ton. A favorable feature is that little or no free gold is seen, and that the gold is associated with the sulphides. The deposit has a width of three to twelve feet, and the property lies within eight miles of the railway. Acquisition of control of the Koch-Daneff is, of course, subject to the approval of Smelter Gold's shareholders.

Cariboo Gold Quartz produced 1,754 ounces of gold during September, for a new high record. This compares with 1,337 ounces in August, and was greater than the combined production of May and June.

God's Lake has definitely decided to go ahead with mill construction, with officials satisfied they have sufficient ore indicated to justify an initial plant of 300 tons of ore per day.

Dome Mines realized a net profit of $2,476,704 during the nine months ended September 30. Costs were $3.90 per ton. Gross income was $5,901,000 for the period.

Mines, at Porcupine. The property is one with outstanding merit, and is assured of efficient development under the management of Sylvanite.

Bobjo Mines has worked into a strong position, holding $236,084 cash, plus 106,000 shares of San Antonio, 250,000 shares of God's Lake, 650,000 shares of Manitoba & Eastern, 6,000 shares of Forty-Four Gold, together with a number of important options on other properties.

Roche. A diamond drill hole on Roche Long Lac, east of the Little Long Lac Gold Mines, has yielded 43 feet of ore running $10.20 (gold price) according to an official report. This was at a depth of 150 feet. On surface the vein was quite narrow at this point. The drill has been moved 400 feet west, under more favorable surface showings.
